

SALLY BRAMPTON

Style's agony aunt from 2006 to 2014, who died two weeks ago, was the former editor of Elle and Red magazines and a visiting professor in fashion journalism at Central St Martins. She was widely admired for chronicling her battle with depression. We celebrate her infinite wisdom

Rule number one:
NEVER interfere
in anybody else's relationship

I have a sneaking fondness for KATE MIDDLETON. There is no better blueprint for conducting a successful relationship than the confidence and certainty of self that being wholly loved brings

THERE ARE ALWAYS THORNS AMID THE BLOOMS

I've learnt
there is no such thing as an ORDINARY life

It is not wrong to feel dislike for somebody

RESENTMENT is corrosive, it eats into our hearts and souls and lives

PLATITUDES are of no use to anybody

It is all too easy to allocate BLAME, but, in the end, it becomes a prison of our own making

NO is not a word we like,
because people
might not like us

Don't be a
GUNSLINGER

LOVE is a sudden rainbow that appears unexpectedly.
It might just as easily be waiting at a bus stop as lounging in a wine bar or crouching over a computer

Cosmo and Dolly will return next week
